Pinchot Says He Will Drive Saloon From Pennsylvania If Named Governor.

BY J. BART CAMPBELL
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The booze question is threatening to rip the Republicans of Pennsylvania wide open again with a renewal of the factional strife which followed the passing of the late Sen. Hines Penrose, as political boss of that state and resulted in the nomination of Gifford Pinchot for governor, according to reports in political circles here today.

Pinchot's announced determination "to drive the saloon out of Pennsylvania," and to stop the dispensing of something stronger than beer over the bars of "wet" cities like Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, if he is elected governor, is said to have brought him in sharp conflict with some of the old time Penrose leaders.

Pinchot's additional announcement that he proposed to "clean up the mess at Harrisburg, if he wins out at the November elections, has also aroused the ire of former Penrose men like Max G. Leslie, Pittsburgh boss, who have refused to pledge themselves to Pinchot's reform platform.

Pinchot's friends here are confident, however, that with the aid of a big woman like "dry" vote such as Sen. Frelinghuysen was banking on in New Jersey, he will be the next governor of Pennsylvania. They say world opinion favors this thing. The registration of Pennsylvania voters for the November election fell off 30 percent from what it should have been if old general apathy had not manifested itself.

Two Advantages.

But Pinchot possesses at least two advantages. The democratic gubernatorial candidate is also "bone dry." And the "wet" democrats have no choice but to stay away from the polls rather than vote for him. The Republican senatorial candidates, Pepper and Reed are expected to receive the combined organization support and while for former Penrose men may knife Pinchot in spots he will probably guarantee a lot of votes from those who support the "straight ticket."

Unlike the situation in New Jersey, where Sen. Frelinghuysen is running against Gov. Edward I. Edwards, an avowed "wet" senatorial candidate on the Democratic ticket who once promised to make that state as wet as the Atlantic ocean, the fight in Pennsylvania is centered largely upon the "good government" issues raised by Pinchot.

Modest Dry Laws.

The Democrats of New Jersey are pledging themselves to modification of the Volstead law, including the "restoration of the right to the lawful indulgence in beer and light wine." The Republicans are on record in their platform as favoring rigid adherence to law observance and enforcement as in Pennsylvania. The women and the churches are taking a big hand in the Jersey battle. Both "wets" and "drys" are attaching the utmost importance to the result of the "drive" for and against "liberalization" of the Volstead act which is being conducted in what the "bone dry" prohibitionists declare are two of the "wettest states in the union." The election of Pinchot and the re-election of Frelinghuysen will be a hard blow to the anti-prohibitionists.

ZION COP CAN MAKE SHOES LAST 10 YRS.

Put Glue and Sawdust Sole on Old Uppers—Presto! Just Like New Ones.

ZION, Ill., Oct. 12.—Don't throw your old shoes into the ashcan! Policeman Isaac Parry, of Zion, Illinois, has discovered a method of restoring worn-out soles and making them like new. Even if your soles are almost on the ground and the bottoms of your toes are beginning to show through, by young Parry, you can fix 'em. He has invented a simple method of making shoes practically everlasting, so far as the soles are concerned. "Just as long as the uppers will hold together, Parry can make them last ten years."

Here is the formula. Just get a nickel's worth of sawdust and a dime's worth of glue. Apply the glue in liquid form to the soles of your shoes and cover the glue with a rich coating of sawdust. Then let the shoes stand overnight so that the glue will dry. When you walk on them the sawdust will pack as hard as bricks. If you use waterproof glue it will stand wet weather. When they wear out just repeat.

Young Rockefeller Makes $52,000,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is not going to lack pin money for a few weeks. He is today $52,000,000 richer as the result of 400 per cent stock dividend of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

Rockefeller was credited with owning 35,970 shares of the common stock of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, the "parent" company of all the Standard Oil interests. Last year this stock sold at $125 a share.

Suddenly an intensive buying movement started, evidently on the part of insiders who knew that vast profits would make an extra dividend possible. The share rose in value to from $240 to $245. This rise and the dividend furnishes the basis for the news that Young Rockefeller is $52,000,000 richer, a million for each week in the year.

HONEYMOON CAR IS BANNED BY POLICE

MOTORIST LOSES LIFE IN CRASH

Bride and Groom Oblivious to Fact That Automobile Was "Borrowed."

Automobile Driven Into Tree; Believed Property of Barney Oldfield.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Some officers of the law have no regard for the blissful serenity of an automobile honeymoon.

Two newly wedded "doves" were happily coasting as they sped along the boulevard, undisturbed by the din of the clattering washboilers, dishpans and other culinary utensils which dangled from their machine. Rice and confetti were showered over the pair. Everything was so plain a blind man could have seen they had just been married, as a displayed sign asserted.

Nevertheless, two guardians of the law stepped forth and ordered the new Benedict to apply his brakes.

"This is a stolen car!" belched one of the officers. "Get out! We'll have to take it to headquarters."

"But what are we to do?" the groom asked with trepidation.

"Don't be afraid," the blue-coated authority, "Walk."

John J. Butza, the newlywed, explained he had borrowed the car from George Musick, who in turn had borrowed it from James Jasinski, a machinist. The latter who said the car was left with him for repairs, was arrested. The owner recovered his car, adorned with the marital decorations.

State Entomologist

Finds His Pet Bug

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 12.—Officers of the state department of conservation were turned inside out late yesterday when Frank Wallace, state entomologist, lost his pet bug.

The entire personnel of the department as well as a few outsiders were called on to assist in the bug hunt.

Wallace crawled under a table on his hands and knees and picked it up. It was a tobacco leech.

AGED PRISONER

KILLS ROOM MATE

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Oct. 12.—Because Armond Mueller, 89, his roommate at the relief home for 20 years, made faces at him, August Rief, 85, today occupied a cell at the city prison, the oldest prisoner ever charged with murder in the local courts.

He is very deaf. He says Mueller made faces at him and he struck him not more than twice with his cane. Mueller was found unconscious and died.
